had to leave what she was doing to answer the phone.
"Hello. Is this Mrs. Beasley?" asked an anxious voice.

ing the hardly known what. "I am Mrs. Beasley, can you tell me if you are going to have doughnuts for lunch?"

SUFFERING OF EXILES SHOWN IN PICTURES

American and Syrian Relief Committee Distributes Posters and Contribution Boxes.

Pictures of the sufferings of exiled Armenians and Syrians were shown to the residents of Washington today for the first time. Posters were set up in stores, hotels, and theaters of the city, giving a few of the less revolting scenes taken along the route covered by exiles from their march from their native lands.
They depict children and women who have dropped by the way exhausted and starving, many dying and others in silent but pathetic contemplation of their sad plight.

The posters were distributed by a committee of Syrians and Armenian residents of the National Capital, under direction of the Washington auxiliary committee, which is conducting the relief campaign in this city. The committee consists of Mousour Samaha, Joseph Riak, and M. Baccot.
A second committee, which was organized at the recent meeting in the office of Dr. M. M. Doimage, in Vermont avenue, called on proprietors of the larger restaurants here, and requested them to give a prominent place in their establishments to the contribution boxes provided to facilitate the giving. The personnel of this committee was A. M.
Baramian, S. Daoub, and Dr. A. L.
Garabedian.

One of the striking arguments made on the posters is that a contribution of one dime will keep a survivor of the massacres and exile alive for one week.
